

1. Which of the following software development models can best respond to requirements changes?

- a. The Waterfall model
- b. Agile models
- c. The V-model

2. In which of the following software development models are the software development activities performed sequentially rather than in iterations?

- a. Agile models
- b. The Waterfall model

3. Which of the following are limitations of the Waterfall model? Select three

- a. Integration issues may remain undetected until the last phase
- b. It is difficult to respond to requirements changes
- c. Misinterpretations of requirements or design can remain undetected until the later development phases
- d. It is not suitable for big projects